Verner Pantan, 1958

vitra.

The design career of Verner Pantan reached its first peak toward the end of the 1950s. With a furniture series based on simple geometric shapes, Pantan anticipated elements of Pop Art, while also emulating the elegance of Scandinavian Modernism in the execution of the bases.

The most famous designs from this series are the Cone Chair and the Heart Cone Chair. The Heart Cone Chair takes its name from its heart-shaped silhouette. The extended wings of the backrest are reminiscent of Mickey Mouse ears, but can also be interpreted as a contemporary development of the classic wingback chair.
